November 8 – 10, 2017

Thursday 9 (afternoon session): Roundtables – Working as a Jesuit Global Network

3:00-4:00 Aula Magna UAH	General discussion: -Using Evidence in Global Programming: Borrowing from systematic review methodologies in social and health science outcomes research, this session will demonstrate a process to locate, appraise and aggregate research results from published reports on educational practices related to global learning. Additionally, the session will highlight how such information is critical for program design, assessment, and integration of research into global learning. As a research methodology, systematic review lends itself well to collaboration between academic departments, and can form a strong – and inexpensive base – for inter-institutional research on global programs. Presenter: René Padilla, Ph.D., Creighton University.

9:30-11:00 Parallel Sessions Casa de Retiro Padre Hurtado.	Room 1 Topic: International Student Recruitment This round-table discussion will start with a question: is there a benefit to the idea of developing an international recruitment platform in which we combine resources to promote our Jesuit brand of education to students across the Americas? We have already built numerous ways to exchange and engage our students once they have enrolled in our respective institutions. Can we imagine what a Jesuit International Student Recruitment Tour, for example, might look like? Presenter: Joseph Kinsella, Gonzaga University	Room 2 Topic: Global Network: Policies and Procedures: In this session, representatives from various AJCU institutions will share examples of policies and procedures used when working with outbound Education Abroad students. Based on feedback from the 2017 NAFSA conference, we will discuss why we have established the policies and procedures we are presenting, how they may apply to other institutions, what factors to consider before establishing similar policies and procedures, and discuss ways in which we can share via web with the entire Jesuit University International Education community. Presenter: Karli Webster, Marquette University and Sharon Li, University of San Francisco.	Room 3 Topic: Collaborations amongst Jesuit Universities: A Round Table of Options will discuss various models and ways universities can and do work together (beyond exchanges).
